FARMER HOWE SUES FARMER SCOTT $2,500 Invested in a Commission Business Demanded Back.

"Farmer" William A. Scott, who took a prominent part in stumping the State for Bryan in the last campaign and later in the Whitehead divorce case, is defendant in the Supreme Court in an action brought against him by Philo P. Howe of Deposit, Broome county, to recover $2,800. Scott is a farmer who has been about town for a long time asa commission merchant in butter and other farm products with E. C. Schnitzer. Howe

In the fall of 1898 the firm of Scott & Schnitorator told him that Schnitzer's interest in the business, which netted Schnitzer's storest in the business, which netted Schnitzer $300 a month, could be bought for $2,800. Howe says that Mrs. Scott and her brother, John Frederick Thomas, Jr., who was corespondent in the Whitehead divorce suit, helped out "Farmer" Scott in showing what a good thing he would get if he harnessed up with Scott. Finally Howe agreed to a cancellation of his butter bill of $800 and paid Scott $2,000 in cash for the interest of Schnitzer. It appears that Scott had taken a bill of sale from Schnitzer of his interest so that in fact Scott was himself turning over the good thing to Howe.

When Howe became a commission merchant he asserts inquiries of the most pointed sort falled to elicit any profits from Scott. Howe says that he came to the conclusion that the business was not profitable. Scott told him that business would improve when free silver came. Howe demanded his money from Scott who offered a note for the $2,800 with $124 added for more butter supplied to the business. Howe refused to take the note. Scott subsequently became purchasing agent for supplies for the Department of Charities. He denies that there was any fraud on his part. usiness, which netted Schnitzer $300 a month,

"TWAS ME DID IT."

Says an Eleven-Year-Old, Charged With Bur glary, and He Gets Playmates Off.

Henry Robinson, 11 years old, of 244 Monroe street, saved four playmates from prosecution on charges of burglary yesterday Samuel Adamson, a bologna manufacturer at 158 Monroe street, missed $55 and a check for $181.41 out of his till on Friday night. He saw Robinson and two other boys running from the place and gave chase. The boys were caught by the police of the Madison street station. Most of the money was found in Robinson's pockets and the check was in Robinson's pockets and the check was picked up in the street.

"Judge," said Robinson yesterday in the Essex Market police court, as he pointed to the other boys who were weeping and protesting their innocence, "let dose fellers go, Dey didn't do a t'ing. It was the did it. I saw the butcher on der sidewalk an' just sneaks in an' swipes der mon'. I just treated dose fellers ter some candy. Wen I hears der butcher yell I rim and dese udder fellers run wid me, dat's all."

Magistrate Flammer accepted Robinson's statement and discharged the others. Robinson was held for trial.

AHEARN CHOWDER TICKET. 84.

Price Acts as Insurance on Valuables -- But There Will Be Games.

Bright and early to-morrow the friends of Senator Thomas F. Ahearn will go on their annual chowder party to Donnelly's Grove at College Point. Last year 2,000 took the at College Point. Last year 2,000 took the trip. Those who know say there will be more this year, because Ahearn has come out for the Hon. P. Divver in the latter's fight against "Big Tom" Foley. Judge Divver, according to common report, has sont out orders that nothing prevent the Ahearn outing from being a success.

A chowder ticket costs $4, which, it is said, insures purchasers against the disappearance of watches and diamond pins. It is expected that a number of people will take along croquet sets and other games that are played with balls. A few packs of playing cards will be provided for those who prefer the game of old maid.

RING FOR BISHOP-BLECT O'CONNOR Presented by the Christian Press Association Composed of 1,100 Priests.

Bishop-elect O'Connor of the Diocese of Newark whose consecration will take place on Thursday received yesterday a magnificent episcopal ring from Paris, the gift of the Christian Press Association, the publication bureau of the Catholic church, which s composed of 1,100 priests. The association was organized seven years ago by Cardial Satolli, then Papal Delegate, and Father O'Connor has been a member of it ever since. The presentation was made at Seton Hall College, where Father O'Connor is now in patrent preparatory to his consecration, by the Rev. James L. Meagher and the Rev. Dr. Hill, President and Vice-President of the association. Father Meacher made a short speech to which the Bishop-elect repiled. Brooklyn Advertisements.

CONTINGENT FEE MINUS.

"Widow" Lilyon B. Daniels's Suit Costs Lawyer Hatch $11,600.

"This is a proper case for an extra allowance, but in view of the extraordinary hardship disclosed by the papers, I think the allowance should be moderate," said Jus-tice Blanchard of the Supreme Court yesterday in awarding Lawyer Thomas Nelson $350 in addition to a judgment of $11,257.48 which he had obtained against Lawyers Edward S. Hatch and Lyman S. Warren. The path of these lawyers, who sought to secure as contingent fees a share of the large estate of William B. Daniels of Colorado in view of advancing the necessary expenses and their services, was far from roseate. Hatch & Warren were partners in the law ousiness in this city in 1891 when they took up the claim of Mrs. Lilyon B. Daniels against the estate of William B. Daniels. The action was to establish that she was the widow and as such entitled under the laws of Colorado to half the estate. This estate was claimed by William C. Daniels, son of William B., and principal legatee under the will. Before beginning the litigation Mrs. Daniels and the lawyers agreed that the lawyers should not charge for their services unless successful and that they should advance all money necessary in the litigation. In the event of their success the lawyers were to get 30 per cent. of the recovery. Mrs. Daniels was not then in a position to advance any money. After this agreement was made on Feb. 20, 1891, the lawyers made a subagreement with Lawyer Thomas Nelson by which Nelson agreed to furnish all necessary money in the action up to $10,000 for a consideration of 15 per cent. of any recovery. Mrs. Daniels brought smit in the United States courts in Colorado against William C. Daniels early in 1801. By Oct. 1 of that year Nelson had advanced $7,000, which was turned over to Hatch. Nelson received a demand for $1,000 more on Nov. 14, 1891, from the firm of lawyers, made at the instance of Hatch, but it appeared that when Nelson called on Lawyer Warren about the demand Warren said the $1,000 was not necessary. Hatch wrote to Nelson, in view of the fallure to get the $1,000, that Nelson's agreement with the firm was cancelled. The firm of Hatch & Warren was dissolved on Sept. 29, 1892, and Warren, under a provision in the firm's agreement with Mrs. Daniels, notified her that her agreement with the firm was cancelled. The litigation of Mrs. Daniels had been unsuccessful up to the time of the dissolution of the firm of Hatch & Warren. Mrs. Daniels also declared her agreement cancelled for refusal of the firm to carry out the agreement. This left Nelson, who had put up $7,000, refusal of the firm to earry out the agreement.

This left Nelson, who had put up $7,000, in a predicament. Mrs. Daniels was not a party to his agreement and he had no claim on her. Warren said that Hatch had handled the money and Hatch said that he had disbursed in the action about $8,000. Nelson then began in 1893 the present litigation, which outlasted the litigation of Mrs. Daniels. He sued Lawyers Hatch and Warren for his $7,000 with interest from 1891. Warren did not defend the case and Hatch contended that Warren, Nelson and Mrs. Daniels had acted in concert against him, but such concert was disproved.

This firm never got any money out of the Daniels estate. Besides the $1,000 Lawyer Hatch expended over and above the $7,000 he obtained from Nelson, he will have to foot the present Judgment.

were two men in his room who were going to murder him for his money. The Swede pointed out an inoffensive Scotchman, who,

he said, had designs on his life. There, he said, had designs on his life. There, waving his hand toward a rose bush, he said that the bush was the other man who had been in his room. Mr. Younge couldn't aliay his fears and the Swede insisted that Mr. Younge would have to sit up all night with him. After a long taik Johnsen said that if Mr. Younge would mind his money he would feel safe. Mr. Younge said he would. Then the Swede threw off his coat, waistooat, shirt and undershirt. The latter fell on the floor with a bang. Mr. Younge examined the shirt and found in pockets, sewed on the inside, eleven twenty-dollar gold pieces and one five-dollar piece.

Relieved of his money, Johnson said he would go to bed. Mr. Younge was congratulating himself on his good luck in getting rid of him, when he heard a sories of screams upstairs. He ran up and found Johnson using his body as a battering ram against the door of the room the women occupied. Every time he struck the door the women yelied. Johnson said that if he couldn't get into the room he would sleep on the mat outside the door. To pacify him Mr. Younge allowed him to do that, but kept a watch on him. He got tired of the mat in about an hour and went to his room. A little later Mr. Younge heard a thud on the Leroy street side of the hotel. Johnson had jumped from the window of his room on the third floor. When Mr. Younge got around the corner the Swede was grappling with Roundsman Hunt of the Charles street station, who saw him jump.

Johnson was then taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said that the journey and the heat had probably unsettled his mind.
